OVERVIEW OF CJTS

Opened on August 27, 2001, CJTS is a secure facility for youth committed as delinquent to the Department of Children and Families (DCF). William Rosenbeck serves as Superintendent of CJTS. The facility housed only boys until March 19, 2014 when the Pueblo Girls' Program located at the grounds of Solnit South was opened to provide similar services to girls who are committed delinquent.

In 2013, the mission statement was rewritten to better demonstrate our commitment to comply with national best practices. The new mission of CJTS is as follows:

To provide a safe, secure and therapeutic environment while providing opportunity for growth and success. National best practices, interventions and standards are integrated into facility operation with the goal of reducing the risk of re-offending, preparing youth for community re-entry and developing positive youth outcomes.

CJTS has been accredited by the American Correctional Association since 2009, evidencing compliance with hundreds of policies, procedures and practice standards. The next audit will occur in 2015. CJTS also began implementation of the Prison Rape Elimination Act (PREA), federal legislation to address sexual abuse and sexual harassment in correctional facilities, and will be subject to a PREA-specific audit in summer 2016.

Recently enacted legislation, known as "Raise the Age" that increased the age of juvenile court jurisdiction to include crimes committed by 16 year olds, effective January 1, 2010, and 17 year olds, effective July 1, 2012 is now fully implemented. As a result, CJTS has experienced an increase in admissions of youth age 16 and above. "Raise the Age" in combination with Section 4 of Public Act 11-157, results in DCF having responsibility for an older population of committed delinquents, some until their 20th birthday.

The renovation of two residential buildings, started in 2013, was completed in 2014. In addition, the construction of a new school, also started in 2013, was completed in December 2014 and is scheduled to open in January 2015. The new school will offer enhanced programming to accommodate needs of the older population of juveniles through increased vocational exposure, adult education and night-school programming. Sufficient numbers of educational staff positions will be critical to ensuring that this programming can occur.

As noted above, on March 19, 2014, DCF opened the 12-bed Pueblo Girls' Program of CJTS specific to serve girls who are committed delinquent. Variant from the boys' program, Pueblo was not designed to be the first commitment placement. Rather, it is for those girls whose initial commitment location has been unsuccessful and a short period of containment and treatment is needed to allow for successful re-engagement in a community congregate care or home setting. [Note: since the Pueblo Girls' Program was not open for the entire 2014 calendar year, information and data in the body of this report refer solely to the boys' services. Appendix A provides a program overview for Pueblo; these services will be integrated into the primary report next year.]

Connecticut was one of four states that over the past several years participated in the Juvenile Justice System Improvement Project (JJSIP) sponsored by the Center of Juvenile Justice Reform, Institute for Public Policy at Georgetown University. The core project team identified a number of areas for revision or improvement within the DCF juvenile justice continuum, including at CJTS. Many of these are consistent with needed changes already identified by DCF staff and administration; other recommendations were new, reflective of national best practices and/or imbedded in research literature.

In response to the recommendations, CJTS developed a length of stay protocol to apply some of the Georgetown findings to various aspects of the youth placement process at the CJTS and reflects (directly or indirectly) a number of the recommendations from the "Preliminary Report" (June 2013). The primary goals of the protocol are to increase the percentage of committed youth who are in the community; increase consistency across confinement-related decision making through the use of robust decision making parameters, based on nationally accepted best practices; decrease both the perception and reality of "Disproportionate Minority Contact" issues through the application of decision making parameters; further stabilize the CJTS milieu and increase community transition success through youth and staff having increased clarity regarding discharge timing and requirements; motivate youth through incentives to comply with structures and participate in activities; improve communication and collaboration among all juvenile justice stake-holders; and increase public safety through the enhanced application of best practices to the secure confinement period.

The protocol, designed through summer 2014, was implemented October 1, 2014 in collaboration with a wide variety of stake-holders. The protocol remains a work in progress but has already had a significant impact through providing structure, process, and consistency to youths' length of stay.

CJTS POLICIES:

CJTS policy is formulated in accordance with American Correctional Association (ACA) expected practices and performance based standards for Juvenile Correctional Facilities, as required by CGS 17a-27e.

Policy formulation and approval occurs in a two-stage process. First, the process begins by reviewing existing policies and established practices and structuring them in accordance with ACA expected practices. When new policy has to be developed, the policy committee reviews policies of like agencies and facilities. New policies are written by reviewing the requirements established by ACA and working with the manager overseeing that area of facility operations. Existing policies are compared to ACA requirements and modifications are made as needed. Once draft policies are formatted they are distributed for field review by the affected personnel. Second, after the local review phase is completed, proposed changes are incorporated and the policies are forwarded concurrently to the Superintendent, as well as to the DCF Central Office for review and approval.

DATA: ADMISSION, DISCHARGE, DEMOGRAPHICS:

Unless otherwise specified, all data relate to admissions to CJTS that occurred during calendar year 2014. (Please see Appendix B for more specific data on 2014 admissions.)

There were 222 admissions of 201 unique individuals to CJTS during 2014, compared to 2013 with 252 admissions of 227 unique individuals.

Age - Average age at time of admission was 17.0 years (16.7 in 2013).

Appendix B also provides a list of total admissions for 2014 including all charges and commitment courts for each admission.

Types of Admission:

There are three ways that a youth is admitted to CJTS, a new commitment (placed directly from court), a congregate care admission from a residential setting, also including detention, hospitals and Manson Youth Institution (MYI), or a parole admission (either relocation or revocation). "Relocation" refers to placement of a child at CJTS for the best interest of the child while an alternative placement is being developed, mitigating a need for a hearing if not in excess of thirty (30) days. "Revocation" refers to the legal process. CGS. §17a-7 Parole of persons in commissioner's custody states:

When in the opinion of the commissioner or his designee it is no longer in the best interest of such child to remain on parole, such child may be returned to any institution, resource or facility administered by or available to the Department of Children and Youth Services.

Recidivism:

In previous reports, the recidivism rate was calculated by simply counting the number of youth who were placed from CJTS to home or a residential setting during the calendar year and returned thereafter to CJTS in the same year. This method does not accurately reflect what would commonly be considered to be "recidivism".

Although there is no current, universally accepted definition of "recidivism", if it is defined as a new arrest for delinquent act or a crime, then boys that are returned to CJTS from a less secure placement for failure to comply with the conditions of his parole should not be counted. Such situations would include boys returned to CJTS because they skipped school, failed to find employment or tested positive for illegal substances and it was determined to be in the boy's and the community's best interest that he return to CJTS until his behavior stabilizes and an alternative placement can be arranged.

At the same time, boys that were arrested for a new delinquent act or a crime, but not returned to CJTS, should be counted. These boys may have received some other sanction other than a return to CJTS because it was determined that such a return was not necessary, or their commitment had ended and a new commitment was not ordered, or they were beyond the age of juvenile jurisdiction so their case was handled in the adult court.

To accurately determine the rate of recidivism for boys committed to and discharged from CJTS using this definition, they would have to be followed beyond their discharge from the facility for a period of time such as three months, nine months or one year. This follow up would require access to juvenile and adult court records and could possibly extend beyond the term of their commitment and, in some cases, beyond the time when the child would be considered to be a juvenile.

CJTS will work with the Juvenile Justice Policy Oversight Committee to implement a recidivism definition that will be adopted to track recidivism within Connecticut juvenile justice programs.

CLINICAL:

A youth's clinical service needs are determined through an audit of their records. A clinical director (clinical psychologist) oversees three clinical supervisors (two supervising clinicians and one supervising psychologist) and a total of 18 clinicians (clinical psychologists and clinical social workers) in addition to a psychiatrist. Available clinical services/programming include:

- Individual therapy;
- Family therapy/contact;
- Psychiatric consultation; medication assessment and management;
- Substance Abuse Treatment;
- Resident Student Assistance Program (RSAP): see description below
- Seven Challenges: see description below
- Dialectical Behavior Therapy (DBT): designed to decrease para-suicidal and suicidal behaviors in adults; it was adapted for use with adolescents who present with suicidal, self-harm and assaultive behaviors in residential settings. The main functions of DBT are to enhance capabilities of residents, improve motivation, and to assure generalization of skills in the community. Residents are encouraged to develop “life worth living goals” to increase their commitment to skill development. The group is broken into skills groups and homework review groups. Residents are taught skills from the following modules: mindfulness, distress tolerance, emotion regulation, interpersonal effectiveness, and walking the middle path. Skills are practiced and used to help decrease confusion about self and experiences with others, interpersonal problems, emotional instability, and moods and impulsiveness.
- Aggression Replacement Training (ART): designed for aggressive youth to enhance social skills, improve moral reasoning and develop anger control.
- Listen and Learn: University of New Haven curriculum used to help offenders understand impact of their crimes on victims, take responsibility, and begin to make amends.
- Problem Sexual Behavior Treatment: through Boys and Girls Village.
- Fire-setting assessments and treatment: provided through the Firesmart Kids curriculum.

The following Table includes all Axis I psychiatric diagnoses made by CJTS clinicians for the 201 unique admissions to CJTS. All but 25 (12%) boys carried more than one diagnosis.

Many of the youth have clusters of diagnoses (e.g. Conduct Disorder and Affective Disorder or Conduct Disorder and Substance Abuse Disorder). In addition, many youth are also coping with family conflicts, issues of loss/bereavement, and/or trauma due to neglect, physical and sexual abuse combined with learning disorders and other cognitive challenges that result in more complex behavioral health presentations.

Substance Abuse Diagnoses - A boy is considered to be in need of substance abuse treatment if he is diagnosed with substance abuse or dependence by a CJTS staff clinician. During 2014 CJTS clinical staff continued to use the Global Appraisal of Individual Need Short Screener (GAIN-SS) to screen for substance abuse needs, with further assessments being completed on youth identified through this process.

Table 10: Substance Abuse Diagnoses for 201 Unique Boys admitted to CJTS

No Substance Abuse Diagnosis	75	37

Of the 201 unique boys admitted, 75 (37%) did not present with significant substance abuse problems while 126 (63%) presented with significant substance abuse problems that resulted in a diagnosis. Of the 126 boys with substance abuse diagnoses, the majority of the boys met diagnostic criteria for Cannabis Abuse only. Thus, 90 boys (45%) abuse marijuana. An additional eight boys (4%) abused cannabis only but met criteria for Cannabis Dependence. Thirty-four (34) or 17% of the boys abused more than one substance.

Substance Abuse Services include:

- Resident Student Assistance Program (RSAP): a research-based substance abuse program specifically designed for implementation in residential facilities. The RSAP psycho-education group continues to be provided to all residents who are admitted through the intake unit (which includes all residents admitted here for the first time as well as returnees who have been out of the facility for an extended period of time and are returned to the intake unit).
- Seven Challenges: an evidence-based substance abuse treatment program designed to enhance adolescents’ commitment to change and guide them through the change process. Seven Challenges is mandatory for all residents who meet the criteria for a substance abuse or dependence diagnosis. The program is a minimum of four-six months of clinical groups, nine intensive interactive journals, a moving on packet, a peer review, and an exit interview to assess competency;
- Narcotics Anonymous: CJTS collaborates with the Middletown area chapter of Narcotics Anonymous (NA) for Hospitals and Institutions and NA meetings are held twice a month on site.

Youth Participation in Substance Abuse Services:

Of the 201 unique boys who were admitted to CJTS in 2014, 99 (49%) had documentation of their participation in the RSAP psycho-education substance abuse services. Another 94 boys (47%) had RSAP during previous admissions. The additional eight boys (4%) were admitted during December and have begun to receive RSAP services. Of the 126 boys who met DSM-IV criteria for a substance abuse diagnosis, 89 (71%) had clinical notes or documentation of their participation in Seven Challenges groups. Twenty-nine (33%) of these completed all nine of the journals as well as the moving on packet and their final interview. Thirty-seven (29%) did not participate in substance abuse treatment groups. Some of these boys are beginning the groups in January 2015 due to having recently moved to a general population unit; some boys who are returnees completed the groups during a previous admission; and some boys had very short lengths of stay (LOS) at the facility and did not enter the groups. There were a few boys who had completed the program at another facility and as a result did not participate in the group again. Many of these youth participated in the Narcotics Anonymous meetings held at the facility.

CJTS successfully participated in its annual Seven Challenges site review on October 20, 2014 by a representative of the developer. A refresher training was held with all clinical staff and reviews of resident journals as well as direct group observation was held. CJTS was found to be maintaining fidelity to the treatment model and approved to continue Seven Challenges implementation.

Family Involvement in Clinical Services:

CJTS clinical staff make an effort to begin contact with all boys' family members from the time of admission. After the completion of the clinical interview, a call is placed to the family to allow the youth to speak to a family member and to make sure families are aware of the youth's arrival at the facility. All 201 boys (100%) had clinical documentation of the attempt to make contact with the legal guardian at the time of admission.

All families are encouraged to be involved in their youth's treatment while at the facility. Family members participate in the initial treatment planning conference and are encouraged to attend family therapy sessions. Consistent with past years, 67% or 132 boys had clinical documentation of family therapy sessions. In 2013, 76% of families participated in family therapy services. This drop was likely due to the discontinuation of transportation services by the Department of Social Services. CJTS was informed on October 1, 2014 that the facility is not eligible to use State of Connecticut medical transportation. Many families relied on this service to participate in family therapy sessions. Since this decision was made many of the regions have begun to assist with transportation through the use of case aides.

Individual Therapy Services:

CJTS clinical staff meeting individually with boys on their caseloads to address individual needs, provide crisis services, case management related to their stay at the facility, as well as address their discharge and transition to the community. Of the 201 unique admissions, 194 or 97% of boys had clinical documentation of individual sessions with their clinician. Of the seven boys who did not have notes, five were admitted during the last week of December and one boy was in the facility for only two days.

EDUCATIONAL SERVICES:

Educational services at CJTS are provided by the Walter G. Cady School, part of the Unified School District #2 (USD #2) which operates under the leadership of Dr. Stephen Tracy, Superintendent of Schools. John Mattera is Principal of Cady School.

Team Teaching Model

At the Walter G. Cady School, a core team of two academic teachers and a pupil services specialist (PSS) are assigned to students in each residential unit. Upon arrival, students undergo a social-behavioral assessment and achievement testing. During this period, school records are obtained, credit needs are assessed, and an appropriate course schedule is developed. Teaching teams meet with clinical, medical, parole and residential unit staff at weekly treatment team meetings; each resident is reviewed monthly.

Extended School Year

Students are required to attend all classes, Monday through Friday, and the school day consists of 5 hours and 20 minutes of instruction during the regular school year. Cady School's instructional calendar includes both a traditional calendar plus a summer intersession of 32 days. Given the high incidence of students arriving with credit gaps, summer school gives students the chance to catch up on required credit needs.

Online Learning

Walter G. Cady School obtained the Odyssey Program in 2013 as an alternative way for students to complete credits toward graduation. Credit is awarded based on acquisition of the information presented and passing the online test questions.

Time Out /In-School Suspension

Students with persistent disruptive behavior often need a structured setting away from peers and other distractive stimuli and a time-out room is staffed by a full-time special education teacher who can supervise students as necessary.

Student Body Characteristics

Due to CJTS having an older population, the educational needs of the Cady School population have changed. For example, graduations are more frequent and more residents need vocational training and/or post-secondary educational options.

For students at CJTS after graduating, a certified school counselor provides postsecondary educational support by e.g., arranging vocational training, assisting with applications for higher education, independent living skills development, and coordinating driver education classes.

2015 CJTS Report

Because of the depressed levels of functioning that many students come in with, reading instruction has been receiving additional curricular emphasis since September 2009 and is following standards of the nationally recognized "Literacy How" program.

Upon entrance to USD#2, the following assessments are completed:

- STAR reading assessment and Lexia Strategies Reading Program skills assessment;
- Informal reading assessment and progress monitoring tools (CORE Reading Assessment and EasyCBM);
- Informal math assessment and progress monitoring tools (EasyCBM, Khan Academy);
- START math assessment;
- Criterion-based assessment in core academic subjects;
- Career Cruising Program web-based career exploration and portfolio building program to facilitate and support the mandated Student Success Plan.

Credit Retrieval

Students arriving at this facility often have histories of incomplete coursework, partial credit and course failures from multiple placements. Much effort is made to obtain records of previous coursework, finish partially completed courses and plan schedules leading to completion of graduation requirements. Extra credit may be earned with supervised homework, summer intersession courses or online using the Odyssey Program.

Digital Technology- PowerSchool, IEPDirect and SWIS

The Cady staff continues to expand its use of school administrative software used by most Connecticut school districts. PowerSchool is used for grading, scheduling, attendance tracking, report cards, transcripts and state reporting. IEPDirect allows for electronic IEP production, state reporting and electronic transfer of Individualized Education Plans between school districts. School-Wide Information Systems (SWIS) is used in conjunction with PBIS (Positive Behavioral Interventions and Supports) to track and analyze behavioral data.

Medal of Honor

All students who enter CJTS receive approximately 20 hours of the Medal of Honor (MOH) instruction during their thirty days in the Intake Unit. Both of the Intake Unit teachers are military veterans themselves. The content relates to the characteristics and attributes of the citizens who are awarded the Medal of Honor.

Positive Behavior Intervention Supports

The PBIS program was initiated in February 2013 to develop a mission statement and a school-wide reinforcement system that supports the values of the mission stated below:

"At Walter G. Cady School we will create an environment that values education through fostering safety, citizenship, respect, and a strong work ethic."

Teachers recognize and reward behaviors that are consistent with these four values. Each teaching team nominates a student who has demonstrated such behavior and acknowledges the achievement at a monthly luncheon. Other students compete to demonstrate the behaviors that put them in the running for this award.

Literacy How

Cady School follows the nationally recognized Literacy How program in which students are grouped for direct reading instruction. Tier 3 is an intensive program using a multi-sensory approach to phonics-based instruction (Wilson Reading Program). Tier 2 provides word analysis techniques, vocabulary development and comprehension strategies. Tier 1 provides explicit instruction in reading comprehension strategies and vocabulary development for readers who have developed an efficient decoding system.

[Please see Appendix C for additional information about programs within or supported by the Cady School.]

SAT and PSAT Testing for 2014

Six (6) students took the PSAT in at Cady School and 36 students took the SAT at Cady School.

REHABILITATION/RECREATION SERVICES

The Rehabilitation Therapy Department provides a variety of therapeutic programs and activities for the residents. Programs and activities are designed to meet the physical, social, emotional well-being, recreational and rehabilitation needs of the residents. All programs are structured to afford the residents the opportunity to increase self-esteem, gain self-confidence, promote personal interest and increase pro social skills, with the ultimate goal of positive community reintegration.

The Rehabilitation Therapy Department is best described as providing three areas of programming: therapeutic programming, "diversional" programming, and special events. As well as activities on grounds, we also take residents to program/activities in the community. The Rehab department also runs incentive programs for residents such as the campus point store and high level night in "The Zone".

At the close of 2014, the department had 15 staff for the boys and girls units combined: one rehab therapy supervisor, three rehab therapists (therapeutic recreation), two rehab therapists (art therapy), two Rehab Therapists (music therapy), two full-time and five part-time rehab therapy assistants. These staff provide programming seven days a week and on holidays. [Please see Appendix D for complete description of rehabilitation and recreational programs.]

The table below provides 2014 resident participation in the Rehabilitation Therapy Department activities

Boys and Girls Club of America has a club within CJTS grounds, providing programming to all residents and focusing on inspiring the youth to reach their full potential and realize the endless opportunities. The Club provides a linkage to community clubs following CJTS discharge. (See below.) The Boys Club offers the following programs:

- Monthly Birthday Celebration

This is a program that is designed to recognize the importance of celebrating life. Staff provides dinner for all Birthday participants and a variety of fun activities are planned to keep them engaged. The resident's looks forward to seeing their names on the Birthday board and youth have shown appreciation and enthusiasm in club activities.

- Money Matters

Money Matters is a curriculum based program through BGCA that focuses on financial literacy for youth. This program is one of the programs that resonate well with the youth. It focuses on the fundamental aspect of how money works and how to become financially stable thru being financially responsible and literate.

- Passport to Manhood

Passport to Manhood is a program designed to prepare male adolescents to become young men through every day issues & challenges. The program entails activities and ability to communicate effectively with the opposite sex. We have held 10 sessions in the quarter. The sessions focused on relationships with family. We had 10 participants.

- Job Ready/Career Launch

This programs empowers the young men to develop transferrable skills they will need to be productive employees in the workforce. They gain knowlegeable skill such as conflict resolution, team work, effective communication and maintaing employment.

- Game Room

The Game Room provides a pro social milieu for club members to interact with other members, and/or staff, as well as play many fun and entertaining games. Games include ping-pong, spades, checkers, chess, Nintendo Wii, play station 3, air hockey and fooseball. In our efforts to keep all members active, we also have a collection of activities introducing interactive games such as, Clue, Monopoly, Sorry, the Game of Life, and Scrabble. The games room is available after every 45 minute group session and available weekends.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT

The CJTS Medical Department includes: a Director of Nursing, Karen Fowler, (who supervises all nursing and medical staff); licensed medical practitioners (a pediatrician and an advance practice registered nurse [APRN]); nursing staff (16 registered nurses; two per diem nurses; head nurse positions [vacant]); dentist (vacant position), one dental hygienist and one dental assistant. The medical staff work closely with the psychiatrist in the Clinical Department. Nurses are on site 24/7 and medical professionals are on call when not on site. Residents are seen at the medical suite every day, Monday through Friday at clinic, and the nurses encounter the residents throughout the day, evening and night.

Nursing responsibilities include: Nursing assessments at admission, discharge and for any acute or chronic health complaints in between; medication administration; treatment administration; assist the practitioners during clinic; respond to all assistance calls; lead in all emergency situations; active member of the treatment team; and resource to all other departments regarding health concerns. Medical acuity ranges from Insulin Dependent Diabetes Mellitus (requiring close monitoring of blood sugar levels) to orthopedic medical problems (requiring orthopedic surgery) to wisdom teeth extractions to managing complex gastrointestinal problems. The young men committed to CJTS come with medical problems that are often related to traumatic histories and neglect. It is our responsibility to ensure comprehensive medical attention and appropriate health care related to these medical problems.

On each youth's admission, nursing staff review a comprehensive collection of medical information and complete a nursing assessment, including a personal medical history and a variety of medical screenings. This admission process includes a discussion with the parent or guardian to describe the facility medical services, to verify the medical history, and to obtain the verbal permission for treatment necessary to provide routine medical care. The nurse then refers the resident to the CJTS licensed medical practitioner for an admission physical examination. Medical services include identifying areas of special needs beyond the practice of the pediatrician and APRN. The Medical Department coordinates close to 400 off-grounds specialty appointments every year including but not limited to: Optometry, Radiology. Orthopedic, Surgery, Oral Surgery Gastro-Intestinal; Endocrinology and Cardiology.

In addition to the routine services, the Medical Department recognizes the medical risks associated with obesity, and staff members have been actively promoting a Health and Wellness Program for residents whose Body Mass Index (BMI) fall in the at-risk category for an unhealthy weight. The voluntary participants of the program are identified on admission and require special lab work to monitor for any abnormal lab values, provide monthly monitoring of weight and BMI, offer educational handouts and discussions with the nurses regarding better food choices and healthier life style choices, coordinate with the Dietary Department to ensure the special offering of a "Health and Wellness" meal at lunchtime, and ensure specially designed recreational activities for Health and Wellness.

VOLUNTEER SERVICES

Veterans Empowering Teens Through Support (VETTS)

The purpose of the VETTS program is to employ combat veterans to provide support to at-risk/gang involved juvenile justice youth using a novel approach that will benefit both populations. This VETTS contract is currently under revision.

Volunteer Services: In addition to the volunteers from the VETTS program, 17 other members of the local community volunteered their services at CJTS. Many of the volunteers were students at area colleges. For example, 9 Wesleyan University students volunteered as part of their Center for Prison Education Program. Through this program, Wesleyan students met once weekly, one-on-one, with CJTS residents to work on academic skill areas specific to each resident. Other volunteers served as tutors in classrooms in the Cady School. Two university professors - one from Yale, the other from Wesleyan - also volunteered their services at CJTS during 2014. Finally, one volunteer with a back ground in horticulture is currently volunteering in our greenhouse, growing flowers and giant pumpkins.

The following table includes cost figures from the previous fiscal year and projected figures for the current fiscal year. Please note that the following expenditure figures do not include fringe benefits or the overhead expenses of state agencies other than DCF – e.g., State Comptroller, DAS, and OPM – whose support services are necessary for the functioning of CJTS.

REINTEGRATION STRATEGIES

Team Decision Making is used to facilitate stepping youth down to lower levels of care.

ACR/TPC – Within 30 days of admission, each youth’s treatment team meets with the youth to review current functioning, goals, and discharge plans. Families are encouraged to participate in this meeting. This initial meeting is the Treatment Planning Conference (TPC). At six-month intervals after this initial meeting, the same group meets to review progress and make modifications to this plan. These meetings are referred to as Administrative Case Reviews (ACR).

The Plan of Service (POS) is developed at the youth's treatment planning conference (TPC). The POS sets goals for the youth to work toward specifically while at CJTS. Combining this meeting with the TPC helps ensure that all parties involved in the youth’s care – most notably the youth and family – are working toward common goals.

Interagency Referrals:

Consistent with the Juan F Consent Decree, clinical staff, in collaboration with Regional staff, refer all potentially-eligible residents to the Department of Mental Health and Addiction Services or the Department of Development Disabilities for eligibility review and services.

Community Programs:

There are a variety of community support, monitoring, and clinical programs that are used to support residents on discharge who return to home settings. The goal is to make referrals to these services as early as possible in each resident's stay to promote engagement between the resident and the provider staff as well as ensuring a seamless transition to the community. Some of the programs (many of which are geared specifically to juvenile justice youth) include:

- Fostering Responsibility, Education and Employment (F.R.E.E.): This reentry service is designed to support youth involved with the juvenile justice system who are returning to their community from congregate settings. This program provides an array of services to support the adolescent's growth in all areas of functioning through family focused interventions and builds on natural supports while accessing local services and opportunities.
- MDFT-RAFT (Multidimensional Family Therapy: Reentry and Family Treatment): Multidimensional Family Therapy (MDFT-RAFT) is an integrated, comprehensive, family-centered treatment for teen drug abuse and related behavioral problems. MDFT-RAFT focuses on key areas of the adolescent's life and provides an effective and cost-efficient treatment. MDFT-RAFT targets a range of adolescent problem behaviors – substance abuse, antisocial and aggressive behaviors, school and family problems, and emotional difficulties. MDFT-RAFT was designed for youth returning home from a juvenile justice facility.
- MST-FIT: This service uses the evidence-based Intensive Home Based (IHB) treatment model, Multisystemic Therapy - Family Integrated Transitions (MST-FIT), through a license by the University of Washington, Seattle, to provide integrated individual and family services to children/adolescents with co-occurring mental health and chemical dependency disorders during the period of their re-entry from residential or juvenile justice facilities back into their communities. MST-FIT promotes behavioral change in the natural environment including helping parents learn to monitor and to intervene positively with their children/adolescents.
- MST-TAY: As an adaption of Multisystemic Therapy (MST), MST for Transition Aged Youth (MST-TAY) provides services for transition aged youth with serious mental health conditions (SMHC) and involvement with the juvenile or criminal justice system. This program focuses on reducing recidivism and increasing young adults' positive functioning in the critical areas of emerging adulthood, such as school completion, employment, independent living, and positive social and partner relationships. It simultaneously works to ensure that the youth receive treatment and management of the SMHC and any co-occurring substance use disorders.
- MST-PSB: Following the evidenced based clinical model, Multisystemic Therapy - Problem Sexual Behavior (MST-PSB), with its established curriculum, training component, and describable method and philosophy of delivering care, this service provides clinical interventions for adolescents who will be returning home from CJTS or a residential treatment program that has provided sex offender specific treatment or for adolescents with problem sexual behavior living in the community that are at high risk for incarceration or residential treatment if intensive community based services are not provided. The model developer is MST Associates, Inc.
- The Boys & Girls Club Re-entry program: provides case management services to youth from Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury, New Britain, Meriden, Middletown and the Hartford Community. The program assists youth in developing the transferable skills needed to make a successful reintegration. While in the community, the boys receive wrap around services from the case manager focusing on education, sociability and employment. The boys are strategically placed at Boys & Girls Club for employment, pro-social programming and to promote a positive self-interest.

Passes continue to be authorized as part of the reintegration process for youth returning home from CJTS. In 2014, 110 residents were granted passes. All but one of the 256 passes occurred successfully. One youth, about to be discharged, did violate the terms of his pass he was returned to CJTS about one week later.

Appendix B provides this information including total number, gender, age and placement for all adjudicated youth in DCF care and custody on December 31, 2014; information on housing facilities; number, age and gender of youth who have left department custody in an unauthorized manner. Note: A teletype is immediately issued for all AWOLs from CJTS.

Recommendations for DCF

- 1) The Board proposes to review the legislative requirements for this report as well as the format for reporting it in order to make it a more effective and useful tool by identifying information that is most important to outcomes.
- 2) The Board recommends that this report be part of the JJPOC process.
- 3) The Board recommends that members receive data identified for the report every six months.
- 4) The Board identifies family transportation as a critical issue as the discontinuation of transportation appears related to a drop in family participation. The Board recommends the Department look for ways to facilitate family engagement.

The program provides: 1) crisis assessment and stabilization, 2) rapid reintegration and 3) short-term gender specific trauma treatment services to girls with complex behavioral health and delinquent needs. Evidence-based services provided include: Girls Circle groups, DBT (Dialectical Behavior Therapy) skills groups, Seven Challenge substance abuse decision-making program. Individual therapy is provided to address treatment targets and provide assistance with skill acquisition. Appendix C (Education)

Student Council Work

The Student Council was initiated in 2006 as a forum for residents to voice concerns and promote positive change. Two students represent each residential unit and faculty members volunteer their time to guide the council at bi-monthly luncheon meetings. The council's work led to the creation of the Hawks Football Team, various improvements in living unit privileges, and fund-raising efforts for local charities.

Football Team: Cady Hawks

Students must meet academic and behavioral standards to gain admission to the football team. There is a rigorous practice schedule and players are expected to display a high level of sportsmanship on the field. The team plays JV and Varsity teams and has just played an eleven-game fifth season. Faculty and staff members continue to volunteer their time to support the team directly and by soliciting donations. Contributions of clothing and equipment have come from the National Football League and many other public and private organizations.

Vocational Offerings:

Small Engine Repair: Students first learn how engines work and what interferes with their operation. After learning about engine systems, students service and repair e.g., garden tractors, lawn mowers, snow throwers, line trimmers, leaf blowers.

Computer Graphics Technology provides an introduction to Apple MAC computers and graphic design software. Students design logos, brochures, ads, posters and calendars. Photo manipulation with Photoshop is also incorporated.

Culinary Arts: students learn basic and professional food preparation, including sanitation, safety, hygiene, nutrition, measurement and correct use of equipment. Students explore meal and menu planning, product purchasing, food production and presentation so they can achieve career success in the food service industry.

students can carry the hours with them when they leave CJTS and apply them in any barbering school of their choice.

NYPUM Incentive Program

The National Youth Project Using Mini-bikes (NYPUM) is one of 44 programs nationwide providing an incentive for disadvantaged youth to succeed academically and behaviorally. Students learn how to operate mini-bikes safely on and off the road at a course within facility grounds. The Honda Motor Corporation provided the bikes for the program start-up seven years ago and Honda replaced the aging bikes with fourteen new ones in 2014.

Soccer Club

A Soccer Club was started in 2013 and meets weekly with between eight to ten boys. A CJTS staff that is a former Peruvian soccer professional helps coach these students.
