

NEWINGTON, Conn. – The Connecticut Public Transportation Commission (CPTC) will hold a public hearing in Waterbury on (Tuesday, May 13) to give citizens and local officials in that area of the state an opportunity to voice their views on public transportation services.

The hearing will take place at 7:30 p.m. at the Amphitheater in Sovereign Bank, downstairs, 26 Kendrick Avenue, Waterbury, Connecticut.

This is one of a series of four public hearings being held this spring throughout the state in metropolitan areas designated by the CPTC. These hearings will enable members of the CPTC to gain firsthand information and input from the public concerning existing and proposed public transportation services within Connecticut.

The CPTC is particularly interested in receiving comments from public officials and private citizens on such issues as:

1. Night bus service
2. Bus stop upgrade/signs
3. Commuter bus services to and from Waterbury
4. Senior transportation
5. Relocation of transit services/Intermodal Transit Center
6. Train station improvements
7. Lack of sidewalks along state/state roads/State not paying for sidewalks
8. Other transit topics of interest to the public.
